Additional Information : This is a secondary school built in 2003 at the request of and in cooperation with people in the surrounding villages to provide access to secondary education for a larger number of students. Nationwide, only 12% of young people advance to secondary education. The next closest secondary school to this village is located in Pommern, approximately 30 miles away. It is very crowded and over-capacity. That school is also owned by the ELCT Iringa Diocese. The school is providing highly effective education. The Tanzanian government requires and administers comprehensive national exams each year to Forms 2 and 4 which students are required to pass before advancing. This school ranked first in the Iringa District in the 2005 national exams. In 2006, the school ranked in the top 2% of all schools in the nation in the Form 4 exams—52 out of 2800 schools. In just 4 years of existence with minimal facilities and operating on a meager budget, the student population (evenly distributed between boys and girls) has grown from 95 to 240 students. The Bomalang'ombe Secondary School has become the school of first choice for many people within an expansive geographic area—with 2 students recently enrolling from the distant major seaport Dar es Salaam.
